

Keeping Women Healthy in the Reproductive Years

Course Description:

This course will provide an evidence-based approach to the link between abortion and breast cancer. The connection between this and other controversies surrounding abortion will be addressed. An Introduction to Natural Procreative Technology will also be presented, using the Creighton Model of Fertility Care System (CrMS). The participants will explore the menstrual and fertility cycles, identifying the corresponding biological health markers.

Objectives:

- ✚ Define the physiology causing both premature delivery before 32 weeks and induced abortion before 32 weeks to increase breast cancer risks.
- ✚ Explore the application of breast maturation biologic principles to medical care including induction of premature labor for fetal abnormalities.
- ✚ Learn documented areas in which the Federal Government has become a barrier to informed consent at both the NIH and NCI and identify areas in which texts and academic medicine have shown bias and deception with regard to the risks of abortion and oral contraceptives as risks for breast cancer.
- ✚ The participants will be able to identify three advantages in determining the Biological Markers of Health and Fertility through the use of the Creighton Model Fertility Care System (CrMS) and the new women's health science of NaPro Technology.

About Our Presenters

Angela Lanfranchi, MD FACS, Clinical Assistant Professor of Surgery at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, Co-founder and Vice President of the Breast Cancer Prevention Institute.

A breast cancer surgeon practicing in New Jersey since 1984 and author of articles on the physiology and epidemiology of abortion breast link published by the National Catholic Bioethics Center, the Institute for Anthropologic Medicine and Bioethics, and other journals. Co-authored a booklet on Breast Cancer Risks and Prevention and written brochures on reproductive and hormonal risk factors. Over the past seven years she has traveled nationally and internationally speaking at medical schools, hospitals, universities, cancer organizations, governmental bodies and the United Nations about breast cancer risks, including its association with induced abortion and hormonal contraceptives. She is collaborating with other breast cancer researchers on projects to determine the genetic changes and reproductive risk factors involved in the etiology of proliferative breast disease and cancer.

Dolores Moreno, Certified Fertility Care Practitioner (CFCP)

Active Member of The American Academy of Fertility Care Professionals, Fertility Care Centers of America, and California Assoc. of Natural Family Planning, currently practicing at O'Connor Hospital, San Jose, CA. Certified through Pope Paul VI Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction in affiliation with Creighton University in Omaha Nebraska, she has taught over 2,024 couples in the use of the Ovulation Method Creighton Model.
